ABSTRACT

System totals from the needs assessment study conducted for planning purposes by the Saginaw, Michigan, Public Schools in the spring of 1985 are summarized. The data are based on 2,100 questionnaire responses from parents, community members, students, administrators, and teachers. Results of the School-Community Survey and the Priority Needs Index (PNI) data are ranked, indicating the nineteen key functions or goals that people feel should be addressed. Data are presented for the elementary, secondary, and system levels. The following school functions emerge as the highest areas of need: personnel; labor relations; staff development; personal development of the student; teacher values and expectations; communications and public relations; auxiliary services and support staff; and school board. Greatest concern centers around ways to change labor relations, personnel, and staff development policies to maintain productive and well-trained school employees. All respondents are concerned with improvement of communication at all levels. (Extensive appendices include ranking data from each group of respondents, as well as responses to the 121 items in the School Community Survey.) (GDC)

INTRODUCTION

In Saginaw comprehensive needs assessments are conducted every three or four years for planning purposes. The last study was conducted during the 1980-81 school year. This study was conducted during March and April of the 1984-85 school year.

The study produces two basically different kinds of information: Priority Need Index (PNI) data which indicate the key functions (or goals) people perceive should be addressed and attitude (or opinion) data regarding current issues affecting education. For this reason the findings are published in two parts - Part I which deals with the PNI data and Part II which deals with perceptions of current issues. Both Parts I and II are summarized at three different levels by producing an Elementary Level Report, Secondary Level Report, and System Level Report.

Information was gathered from parents, community members, students, administrators and teachers. Two thousand one hundred questionnaires were analyzed in this study (see Appendix A for a breakdown of returns by respondent group and a study of possible response bias for non-respondents). The confidence level and error tolerances for the parent and community member sub-samples were determined. Inferences to these populations can be made with 95% confidence for both groups with error tolerances of $\pm 4.3\%$ for parents and $\pm 8.2\%$ for community members.

What Is a Needs Assessment?

A needs assessment is a logical problem solving tool. It is usually the first step and a vital component of comprehensive program planning. A needs assessment is not a program change by itself, but it is a method for helping to determine if change is necessary or desired. It provides information which assists in setting priorities for future development and provides a basis for allocating scarce resources.

A needs assessment is a structured process for identifying and documenting the difference between "what is" and "what should be." The needs assessment process determines: (1) the differences which exist between a desired state of affairs with respect to important goals and functions and the present or actual state of conditions and (2) a list of prioritized needs from these identified differences.

In addition to prioritizing needs in terms of the ongoing functions and goals of a district, a needs assessment should provide a sense of direction regarding new or emerging needs and issues.

A needs assessment is a systematic process which asks three relatively simple questions:

1. Where are we?
2. Where do we want to go?
3. How do we get from here to there?

In essence, the results of a good needs assessment form the basis for sound goal setting and planning.

Changes Since 1981 and Guidelines for Interpreting Results

In an effort to improve the study the following changes were made:

- All instruments were critically reviewed by thirteen division or department heads to ensure adequate coverage of important areas and issues,
- Questions were edited to shorten and add more precision (the questionnaires were reduced by between 15 and 25 percent),
- Community members were polled for the first time in addition to parents,
- Eleven groupings of respondents were analyzed separately as compared to seven previously, and
- The functions were increased by adding Library/Media Center and School Board items to be more inclusive (19 functions are now measured as compared to 17 in the 1981 survey).

Because of these changes and the amount of time between surveys, in most instances direct item for item comparisons were avoided. In the main we should regard these needs assessment results as a "snapshot" of how people perceive the district now and where they think we should be headed.

This Report

The reader should bear in mind that this report is Part I - and contains the results on the nineteen ongoing functions important to the operation of a school district. Also, in an effort to obtain valid data and keep the instruments from becoming too lengthy not all questions were asked of all respondent groups. Part II which deals with information about current or emerging issues mentioned earlier will be published under separate cover. Taken together a wealth of information should be obtainable for planning purposes.

The system-wide responses which follow comprise the basic data set. Immediately following the detailed question by question results will come a "Summary" section which hopefully sets the stage for goal setting.

How Were the Data Collected?/What is a Priority Need Index?

The student, parent, and community member responses were gathered from samples drawn from the various populations while all teachers and administrators were polled. Parents and community members were surveyed by means of a mailed questionnaire, while questionnaires for all other respondents were hand delivered. The "Part I" portion of this questionnaire contains a total of 121 statements about educational services and programs, and the respondents were asked to indicate the following for each statement:

- 1) In your opinion, to what extent should the stated condition exist? and,
- 2) From your knowledge, to what extent does the stated condition exist?

The degree to which a difference exists between what should be, and what is constitutes a need. The following example illustrates the response choices used for the survey, how the need index was determined and how the priority need index (PNI) was established.

	Should Exist	Actually Exists
EXAMPLE: Teachers in our schools take an individual interest in their students?	5	3

- A) In your opinion, to what extent should the stated condition exist?
- B) From your knowledge, to what extent does the stated condition actually exist?

- A) Should Exist ? 1 2 3 4 5
- Do not know Not at all To a slight extent To a moderate extent To a fairly large extent To a very large extent
- B) Actually Exists ? 1 2 3 4 5

The following is a more detailed explanation of the above responses.

SHOULD EXIST	ACTUALLY EXISTS
? Do not know the extent to which the stated condition should exist.	? Do not know the extent to which the stated condition exists.
1 Stated condition should not exist at all.	1 Stated condition does not exist at all.
2 Stated condition should exist to a slight extent.	2 Stated condition exists to a slight extent.
3 Stated condition should exist to a moderate extent.	3 Stated condition exists to a moderate extent.
4 Stated condition should exist to a fairly large extent.	4 Stated condition exists to a fairly large extent.
5 Stated condition should exist to a very large extent.	5 Stated condition exists to a very large extent.

For the example used, the need index was 2 (the difference between "should exist" value of 5 and the "actual exist" value of 3). To obtain a clearer understanding of the relative priority ranking of the expressed needs, it was helpful to also know where on the response scale the difference occurred. For example, a need index of 2 would result from the difference between a "desired" of 3 and an "actual" of 1, while at the same time, the difference between a "desired" rating of 5 and an "actual" rating of 3 also yields a need index of 2. Therefore, to help establish priorities among needs, the following procedure was employed. The needs were weighted by multiplying them by their respective ratings on the "should exist" dimension. This resulted in a Priority Need Index (PNI). This index takes into account the magnitude of the desire of the respondents to have a given condition present in the school district. The PNI could be thought of then as an automatic prioritizing need indicator.

EXAMPLE:	The teachers in our schools take an individual interest in their students.	Should Exist (Desired) 5	Actually Exists 3
	Should - Actual = Need Index
	5 - 3 = 2
	Need Index x "Should" = Priority Need Index
	2 x 5 = 10

One might well ask what are the limits to the size(s) of priority need indices? The theoretical limits range from a +20 to -6. The upper theoretical limit is obtained in the following situation.

$$\begin{array}{rclclcl} \text{Should} - \text{Actual} & = & \text{Need Index} & \times & \text{Should} & = & \text{PNI} \\ 5 & - & 1 & = & 2 & \times & 5 & = & 20 \end{array}$$

The lower theoretical limit can be obtained in the following two ways.

$$\begin{array}{rclclcl} \text{Should} - \text{Actual} & = & \text{Need Index} & \times & \text{Should} & = & \text{PNI} \\ 3 & - & 5 & = & -2 & \times & 3 & = & -6 \\ & & & & \text{OR} & & & & \\ 2 & - & 5 & = & -3 & \times & 2 & = & -6 \end{array}$$

In the three major studies conducted over the years the actual PNI's obtained have never approached the limits of the scale. The scale is obviously biased toward pointing up areas of concern in that it contains many more points indicating "need" (positive values) than it has indicating "lack of need" (negative values).

Table 1 below illustrates both the theoretical and actual limits under discussion.

TABLE 1. THEORETICAL PRIORITY NEED INDEX (PNI) LIMITS CONTRASTED WITH ACTUAL DISTRICT-WIDE FUNCTION PNI LIMITS FOR SAGINAW'S COMPREHENSIVE NEEDS ASSESSMENT STUDIES 1976-77, 1980-81 AND 1984-85.

One can see not only that most PNI's do not go far up the scale (the center is approximately five for the actual data) but also that problems have to be identified in a relative sense. We believe looking at the PNI values that equal or exceed the value that marks off the top 25% (in the case of system-wide questions this value was 6.71) is a useful guide in separating out the highest ranking concerns.

Because PNI's vary more for a particular respondent group than for the system total, the reader may wish to review Appendix B which displays that information. Doing so may provide a more refined sense of priorities within groups.

What Were the Nineteen Functions?

Each function was selected because it represented an important task, process, program or goal in the operation of a public school system. The section which follows identifies the nineteen functions and briefly describes or defines each one.

First, the reader should note that the items chosen to assess the function areas were drawn from a pool of 121 questions. The instruments designed for the various respondent groups varied in length out of concern for both questionnaire length and group's knowledge level with respect to a particular aspect of education (see Appendix C for a listing of the number of questions by function area and group). The definitions of functions follow.

Functions Defined

- 1A. Educational Programs--Elementary: Learning activities and their management that are the core of the curriculum: basic skills (reading, writing, and arithmetic); curriculum development; gifted and talented program; homework; parent satisfaction with achievement; and standards for promotion.
- 1B. Educational Programs--Secondary: Learning activities and their management that are the core of the curriculum: basic skills (reading, writing, and arithmetic); student preparation for college; vocational instruction; supplemental courses (computers and gifted and talented instruction); homework; parent satisfaction with achievement; and standards for promotion.
- 1C. Educational Programs--Special Education: Learning activities and their management that are the core of the curriculum: basic skills (reading, writing, and arithmetic); curriculum development; extracurricular activities; standards for promotion; school psychologists; and social workers.
- 1D. Educational Programs--Adult and Continuing Education: Learning activities and their management that are the core of the curriculum: basic skills (reading, writing, and arithmetic); curriculum development; counselors; homework; and standards for promotion.
2. Leadership by Principals: Administrative action by principal at the building level to support the teaching/learning process: seeks staff suggestions; emphasizes instructional leadership and supervision; provides for effective two-way communications; and is sensitive to staff and community needs.
3. Managing Facilities and Resources: Provision and use of school physical plant and other capital resources: buildings are well maintained; facilities provide a safe environment for students and staff; energy conservation; current textbooks; and lunch program.
4. Labor Relations: The extent to which labor relations is handled in a fair and equitable manner: equitable salary schedule for all employee groups; reasonable fringe benefits; responsible negotiations with unions; and keeps public informed about labor relations issues affecting the schools.
5. Auxiliary Services and Support Staff: Assistance with curriculum, career and personal planning and decision making: readily available services; help to high school students to explore career possibilities; and help in understanding vocational trends.

6. Communications/Public Relations: The availability and exchange of school system information both internally and externally: school business conducted in manner to inspire confidence and approval; students, parents, and staff informed of policies, rules, and regulations; public express concerns to board members and administrators; public informed of school matters and problems; and accurate reporting to the public.
7. Evaluation, Testing and Research: The extent to which evaluation, testing, and research functions are completed: regular testing of students in basic subjects; evaluation of schools effectiveness by public; staff use of data to improve the learning process; test results shared with students and parents; comparison of accomplishments with achievements; and program evaluation.
8. State and Federally Funded Programs: Seeks and uses outside funds: programs to meet the greatest needs of the schools and special educational needs of minority students (bilingual, migrant, and compensatory education).
9. Personal Development of the Student: Services and activities that are generally non-academic in nature and designed to develop student attitudes: self-reliant, respect for other people, and responsible citizenship.
10. Teacher Values and Expectations: Teacher values, expectations, and abilities that guide instructional practice: belief that all children can learn; knowledgeable of curriculum policies and priorities; speak and write well; available to help with problems; and emphasis on pupil participation.
11. Discipline: The extent to which the schools carry out discipline related policies and procedures: printed policy statement; parental notification of problems; administrative support of teachers in student discipline matters; good discipline; assertive discipline program; and teachers motivate students by rewards rather than punishment.
12. Staff Development: Activities for staff and board members designed to improve knowledge and skills in school-related responsibilities: teachers given opportunity to suggest inservice training; participation of teachers is encouraged; new board members are given an orientation to the school system's operation; inservice training improves the teaching skills of instructors; administrators involved in continuing education; and inservice training programs effectively coordinated.
13. Personnel: Activities involved in hiring and keeping competent school employees: the primary purpose of staff evaluation is job performance improvement; teaching assignments based on professional preparation; hiring practices aimed at obtaining well-prepared teachers; job assignments based on qualifications; and teacher dismissals handled in a fair manner.

14. General Administration: Administrative action to plan and manage financial, physical, and human assets; administrators use suggestions from staff and the public in planning and decision making; closes buildings when situations dictate; allocation of resources to high priority objectives; budget presented and interpreted to community; budget reflects identified priorities; "rainy day" fund maintenance; goals organized to show order of importance; planning is a continuous process; research findings used in planning and improving programs; and positive solution to complaints sought.
15. School Board: Board action to oversee and provide leadership toward the management of financial, physical, and human resources; governs responsibly; allows opportunities for public input; rates the superintendent annually; reaches decisions on the basis of background data; works for local control of education; and provides leadership in meeting the needs of students.
16. Library/Media Center: The extent to which the library/media center serves to support instruction: provides additional instructional materials; seeks teacher input when selecting new materials; informs staff of new acquired materials; allows adequate time for student use; and makes available audio visual materials for classroom use.

What follows in the next section is an explanation of the major findings resulting from an analysis of PNIs. First, function areas are identified where there appears to be consensus regarding the existence of a concern. Then the elements or items within a function area are explored to gain an understanding of specific aspects of the concern. Finally, a summary of major findings is provided to highlight observed patterns.

MAJOR FINDINGS

When all responses by parents, community members, students, all teacher groups, and administrators were combined, three function areas emerged as the ones needing the most attention (at or above the 6.71 decision rule discussed earlier). In addition, the top three function areas of each respondent group were reviewed irrespective of the 6.71 decision rule. This review was motivated by the fact that averaging might mask one or more functions that could be considered primary by a particular respondent group or set of respondent groups. This examination revealed five additional high priority functions.

The functions were ranked from 1 = greatest need, 2 = second greatest need, etc., by considering: the number of groups giving it top priority and also its order in the ranking. The function ranking in Table 2 that follows is the result of the strategies described above.

TABLE 2. TOP RANKING FUNCTION AREAS ACCORDING TO PRIORITY
NEED INDICES, 1984-85.

8	School Board	5.07 (ST-3)

*The abbreviation in the parenthesis that follows the PNI gives the name of the respondent group it belongs to plus its ranking within the top three for that particular group. The abbreviations for the groups polled follow.

SYT = System total of all eleven groups combined.

S¹ = Special education teachers in district building level program.

S² = Special education teachers at Millet Center and all county-wide service locations (e.g., Holland Avenue and Early Childhood, etc.).

CE = Compensatory education teachers (i.e., Chapter 1, Article 3, State Bilingual, Migrant and Bilingual VII).

EL = Elementary teachers.

SE = Secondary teachers.

VE = Vocational education teachers at the Averill Career Opportunities Center.

AE = Adult education and ABE teachers.

PA = Parents with students attending the Saginaw Public Schools.

CM = Community members not included in parent category above.

AD = Administrators and degreed professional/technical staff members.

ST = High school students.

To get a feeling for change over time we can examine the highest priorities identified in this needs assessment in comparison to previous needs assessments. The chart below gives the former rankings of these functions in the past studies.

Highest Ranking Functions	Rankings
	1984-85	1980-81	1976-77
Personnel	1	1	N.A.
Labor Relations	2	7	N.A.
Staff Development	3	2	5.5

N.A.--Not applicable because no like category.

The 1980-81 needs assessment identified the areas of personnel (ranked 1), labor relations (ranked 7), and staff development (ranked 2) in the top seven function areas needing the most attention. The 1976-77 showed staff development (ranked 5.5) among the top six function areas. Note that the district-wide summary for the past two studies has been altered significantly in the following: number of function areas, number of questions per function, and number of respondent groups used for analysis/calculations. However, the results do tend to suggest that the areas of staff development and personnel do continue to be priority need areas.

The reader should bear in mind that certain function areas such as personnel and labor relations for example, may appear as a high needs over time because of the personal and sensitive nature of the questions. Not surprisingly people tend to react critically to items which deal with the core of their day to day existence, e.g., personnel evaluations, job assignments, grievance procedures and other conditions of employment. Nevertheless, an examination of the specific questions within these major areas should help determine more about the nature of the problem.

In looking back over time it is apparent that concerns and perceptions do not remain static even when responses are lumped together and averaged. In the 1976-77 survey the number one concern was individualizing instruction, number two was evaluation and number three personal development of the student. This year neither evaluation nor personal development of the student ranked in the top three, in fact evaluation ranked lowest in terms of concern. Individualizing instruction is no longer a function area. In the 1980-81 survey, auxiliary services and support staff ranked third district-wide which is quite different than the situation this year (it was perceived as a high need function only by elementary teachers).

A listing of priority need values for all function areas for the district-wide combined total appears in Appendix D together with a complete listing of all priority need values by function for all respondent groups individually. A more comprehensive listing of the desired, actual, need index, and priority need values for all function areas for the district-wide combined total appears in Appendix E. Similar listings for the other respondent groups appear in Appendices F-P.

At this point attention will turn to items within each of the top ranked functions that equalled or exceeded the 6.71 rule. Hopefully by a review of the high PNI questions within a particular function area a definition of the problem(s) therein will become more evident. The abbreviations for the particular respondent groups used elsewhere will again be employed. A "blank cell" will indicate that the PNI was less than 6.71 and "--" will indicate that the question was not asked a particular respondent group.

The high need priority questions follow for the function area of personnel that shows the greatest need for immediate attention.

Personnel Questions	PRIORITY NEED INDEX												% of Respond- ent Categories Indicating High Need
	Teachers							PA	CM	AD	ST	System Total
	S ¹	S ²	CE	EL	SE	VE	AE
92. The primary purpose of staff evaluation is to improve job performance.	7.89				8.06	7.73	10.51				--	6.82	46%
93. The personnel department hires well prepared teachers.	7.38					7.49	8.66	7.62	6.82			6.71	50%
94. Teachers are assigned based on their quali- fications.			7.07					--	--	7.18	--		23%
95. Dismissal of profes- sional employees is handled in a fair and professional manner.	7.45		7.43		8.53		7.27				--		37%
96. Principals are given an active role in the selec- tion of teachers for their building staffs.								--	--	7.26	--		12%
97. Administrators are assigned to jobs for which they are quali- fied.	9.06	9.40	9.69	8.05	8.58	10.32	9.04	7.69	7.98		--	8.40	91%
98. Our schools do a good job of evaluating teachers.	8.42	9.19	7.23		8.20	8.86	12.80	9.39	7.33	6.85	--	8.46	91%
99. Our schools do a good job of evaluating administra- tors.	12.11	11.75	10.93	9.58	11.43	11.54	12.43	9.27	7.83		--	10.19	91%

The results on five of the eight questions in this area seem to describe the nature of the problem. Nearly half (46%) or more of the respondent groups agreed that the set of five questions dealing with teacher and/or administrator hiring, assignment, and particularly evaluation practices (questions 92, 93, 97, 98, and 99) were major concerns in this function area. Again, the reader should recall that these items hit at the core of every employees day to day existence (job assignment, evaluation, lay off, etc.) and are likely to be critically evaluated. Based on the system total PNIs administrative evaluations and assignments as well as teacher evaluations seem to be the key areas of concern here.

The second greatest priority need area labor relations consisted of five survey questions. All five questions are listed below with the high need PNIs shown.

Labor Relations Questions	PRIORITY NEED INDEX											System Total	x of Respond- ent Categories Indicating High Need

49. Our schools have a fair salary schedule for all employee classifications.	6.98	7.71	7.58		7.47		14.55				--	6.91	55%
50. The fringe benefits for all employees are rea- sonable.			7.03				11.74				--		19%
51. Our school system keeps the public informed about labor relations issues affecting the schools.	6.72	7.81	7.65	7.02	8.23	6.93	8.49				--	6.76	73%
52. Our school system nego- tiates with unions in a fair and equitable manner.	10.47	10.54	10.83	10.60	11.55	10.32	13.79				--	9.10	73%
53. Employee grievances are handled in a professional manner.	9.19	8.78	8.59	8.08	9.84	8.98		--	--		--	7.75	78%

Four of the five items (49, 51, 52, and 53) had more than 50% respondent group agreement that these questions define the high priority given labor relations. These questions dealt with the issues of establishing salary schedules, informing the public about labor relations matters, negotiating with unions, and handling employee grievances. Obviously the teacher cohorts were responsible for making this a high need function area and it appears they were most concerned with the perceived fairness of negotiations and the grievance procedure. As with the personnel function, labor relations deals with matters directly affecting each employee and which are obviously likely to be critically reviewed.

Staff development, the third highest ranked area, consisted of five questions. The four questions with one or more high PNIs follow.

Staff Development Questions	PRIORITY NEED INDEX												No. of Respondent Categories Indicating High Need
	S ¹	S ²	CE	EL	SE	VE	AE
87. Our schools have an effective inservice training program for improving teaching skills.	9.78	9.02			10.24	9.55	12.03			7.12	--	8.11	64%
88. Our school administrators are involved in some type of professional development program.						8.65	6.90	--	--		--		23%
90. Teachers are actively involved in the planning, development, evaluation and/or selection of new teaching materials.	7.07						10.76	--	--		--		23%
91. Staff development programs are effectively coordinated.	9.50	8.71	6.85	6.97	9.05	8.98	12.00	--	--		--	8.56	89%

Of the four questions with relatively high PNIs, questions 87 (inservice to improve teaching skills) and 91 (coordinated staff development programs), had more than 50% respondent group agreement that these define the greatest needs in staff development. It is interesting to note where our school system has devoted more time and effort instituting its staff development program, namely with compensatory education and elementary teachers, no high need was shown. The issue of coordinated staff development programs was high with all teacher groups and thus seems to be a major concern in any effort to improve staff development.

The function area of personal development of the student consisted of three questions. The two questions with one or more high need PNIs are displayed on the next page.

71. Our schools provide experiences for developing responsible citizenship.	7.77		7.40		8.10		7.31		6.85				42%
72. Our schools teach students problem solving techniques.	8.62	7.66	9.00		8.71	6.95	9.21	7.29	6.86	8.48		7.66	84%

The major concern in this area appears to be teaching students problem solving techniques and providing experiences to foster responsible citizenship with 84% and 42% agreement respectively. It is interesting to note that at the elementary level large numbers of teachers and pupils already are focusing on problem solving skills. The widespread use of problem solving exercises may explain, in part, why elementary teachers failed to show a high need on this question.

The next highest ranked function area, teacher values and expectations, contained six questions. The five teacher values and expectations questions with one or more relatively high PNIs are presented below.

Teacher Values & Expectations Questions	PRIORITY NEED INDEX												% of Respond-ent Categories Indicating High Need
	Teachers							PA	CM	AD	ST	System Total

79. Our teachers explain and demonstrate rather than just assign seat work.							6.98						9%

Only one of the teacher values and expectation questions had respondent group agreement approaching 50%. A total of 42% agreement is shown for more effective teacher communication.

The sixth greatest need function, communications and public relations, consisted of four original questions. The two communications/public relations questions with one or more high PNIs are presented below.

Communications & Public Relations Questions	PRIORITY NEED INDEX												% of Respond- ent Categories Indicating High Need
	Teachers							PA	CM	AD	ST	System Total

60. Our school system pro- vides the general public with accurate reports on its performance.	7.48	6.83			7.59		9.90	7.56	7.76			6.74	59%

Both questions netted more than 50% agreement of high need. There is 82% agreement that conducting business in a manner which inspires public confidence could be improved. There is agreement (59%) that our district could be better in reporting on its performance.

The seventh greatest need area of auxiliary services and staff support consisted of five questions. The four questions with one or more high need PNIs are supplied below.

Auxiliary Services & Staff Support Questions	PRIORITY NEED INDEX												% of Respond- ent Categories Indicating High Need

57. Our school district provides remedial instruction to the most needy regular education students.	7.88			7.04	8.32								25%
58. Support staff (psychologists, social workers, speech therapists) provide adequate services to students who demonstrate a need.	7.71		8.19	9.26	7.45		7.14						42%

None of the auxiliary services and staff support questions had respondent group agreement at 50% or above. Forty-two percent did feel that better support services from psychologists, social workers, and speech therapists could be provided.

The last high need function area related to the school board. This function consisted of a set of eight questions. The three questions with one or more high need PNIs for any respondent group are presented on the next page.

School Board Questions	PRIORITY NEED INDEX												X of Respond- ent Categories Indicating High Need
	S ¹	S ²	CE	EL	SE	VE	AE
110. The school board mem- bers make an effort to keep informed.	8.59	9.70	8.37	8.35	8.38	7.82	6.87				--	7.32	73%
114. School board members are known by the com- munity.		7.22					6.82	6.91			--		28%
115. Our school board pro- vides leadership in meeting the needs of students.	7.49		8.30	7.72	7.65	7.59	9.62	6.90				6.95	67%

Two questions (informed school board and the school board leadership questions, 110 and 115 respectively) showed percentages of agreement in excess of 50. Almost three quarters (73%) of the responding groups felt school board members should make more of an effort to be informed about school business. Almost equally as large a group (67%) perceived needed improvements in board leadership in meeting the needs of students.

SUMMARY

The purpose of this study was to identify areas of need within the school district. According to the perceptions of administrators, teachers, parents, community members, and students, the following eight functions emerged as the highest need areas.

1. Personnel
2. Labor Relations
3. Staff Development
4. Personal Development of the Student
5. Teacher Values and Expectations
6. Communications/Public Relations
7. Auxiliary Services and Support Staff
8. School Board

The above system total priorities were determined on the basis of combining the results of eleven respondent groups. In addition, this process included dealing with as many as 121 questions spread across 19 function areas. The mathematical system used to quantify priorities, though not perfect, provides a meaningful way to summarize the data in a systematic fashion. Summarization seldom if ever captures the total complexity of the subject under study, such is the case with the present needs assessment summary. This means that the process of averaging results was complex and the individual who wants to understand what causes an area to be considered a high priority should study the respondent group results by questions within a function.

At least three trends were fairly noticeable. First was that the bulk of the areas of greatest concern dealt with ways to bring about changes in personnel, labor relations, and staff development policies to maintain productive and well-trained school employees. For example, teachers expressed concerns about ways to improve staff evaluation, handling employee grievances, offering an effective inservice program to improve teaching skills, and coordinating staff development programs--factors that in part add up to more effective schools through staff willingness to change and improve while on the job.

The second trend was that communications at all levels needs to be improved. Teachers and the public see a necessity for teachers to communicate more effectively. Both the public and professional staff desire a more "accurate" general reporting of school system performance both in an academic as well as a business sense. Parents and teachers desire school board members to provide informed responses to school matters and play more of a leadership role in communicating needed improvements in school programming.

Clearly noticeable was the trend for respondents to be most concerned with factors connected to the type of contact they had with the schools. For example, students expressed one of their strongest concerns about hiring the best prepared teachers possible, while parents were concerned more about teachers giving additional help to students having difficulty.

Another useful purpose the reports can serve is for specialized applications such as when the clientele of interest is a single group. The detailed information provided offers insight into what the needs and concerns of a particular group were. Thus the report has many professional uses. For example, the supervisor of staff development can review the responses of teachers generally or elementary teachers specifically and get some feel for the training needs of these groups. A couple of aids have been constructed to assist the specialized user with this task. Appendix Q, which contains detailed information for each respondent group by question, should be of great value in translating a priority for a specific group into a full blown plan to address their concern(s). A graphic summary of all functions along with information about the relative need value of the functions themselves and the high need questions within a function area is presented in Appendix R.

Finally, in developing plans to meet the needs specified consideration should also be given to the information contained in the companion document (Part II) which dealt with educational issues rather than functions.

APPENDIX A

A STUDY OF ITEM RESPONSE BIAS: PARENT AND COMMUNITY MEMBER SAMPLES

A study of the preceding Table A.1 reveals that 12% of the parents and 6% of the community members returned questionnaires, or a combined parent/community member total of 10% (931 of 9,287) returned complete instruments. What difference, if any, existed between the 10% and the 90% who chose not to return their questionnaires?

There are a number of strategies to answer that question. A. N. Oppenheim (1964, p. 34) in his book entitled, Questionnaire Design and Attitude Measurement discusses a number of these techniques.

The approach chosen for this study was to compare early respondents with late respondents in terms of their answers to the questionnaire. Researchers have found that respondents who returned completed instruments late closely resembled non-respondents in their attitudes and opinions. Thus by comparing late and early response patterns an idea of whether non-respondents differ can be obtained.

Three educational issue questions were chosen to compare the responses of typical and late responding parents/community members. A chi-square test of significance for proportions was the statistical test of choice. The null hypothesis was that of no difference between the two groups (typical and late respondents) in the proportions responding to any option on the three selected multiple choice questions. The alternate hypothesis was that a greater portion of either typical or late respondents would choose one or more than the other options with greater frequency. The alpha level was set at .05 with a two tailed test being indicated.

APPENDIX A

Table A.2 below gives the cell frequencies and marginal totals of responses per question for typical (T) and late (L) respondents. The calculated chi-square value (χ^2) and the probability (P) associated with the calculated value are also recorded for each question.

Table A.3 below summarizes the chi-square statistics, their associated probabilities, and the decision relative to each for the three selected educational issues.

APPENDIX A

A perusal of Table A.3 reveals that the hypothesis of no difference between late and typical respondents cannot be rejected. Thus it seems safe to assume that the responses obtained from typical parents and community members would be much like those from non-responding parents and community members.
